

Escape from the White House

Scenario ID

Description

In this scenario, the students will find themselves locked in the Oval Office, the working office space of the president of the United States. In order to escape the Oval Office students will practice their reading, listening and speaking skills to solve the puzzles. The enigmas consist of a letter, a national anthem, a flag and many more thematic items. They will find several texts related to American history and a quote taken from the poem dedicated to former American president Abraham Lincoln that will help them to immerse into the enigmas and save the White House from a threatening terrorist attack
